TECH TIP OF THE MONTH

Use 16-Character Passwords for Stronger Security

Cyberattacks are getting smarter, but one simple change makes a huge difference:

Use 16-character passwords whenever possible.

Longer passwords are dramatically harder for attackers to crack, even with modern automation tools. In fact, some security standards now require 16 characters for higher-risk accounts to ensure adequate protection.

How to make it easy:

Use a passphrase instead of a traditional password.

Example: CoffeeOnThePorchAtSunrise!

They're easier to remember — and far more secure.

Stronger passwords protect your email, financial data, business systems, and everything tied to your digital identity.
